SANDY'S DAILY MESSAGE

Today is International Day of Families.

This year in particular, there is a poignancy around our extended families - many of us have not been able to see our loved ones as usual and communication has had to be via different means.

With all that is going on, it is all too easy to forget to contact relatives and friends.

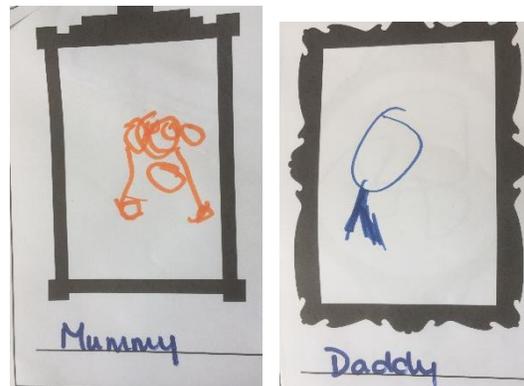

So maybe today would be a good time to pick up the phone, write a letter and touch base with those that are special to us.

On behalf of your 'Link Family' I send our best wishes to every single one of you and I hope you manage to have a nice weekend and that the sun continues to shine.

Sandy

Here at school today, some of the pupils in Willow Class made some picture books to share with their family, which they are taking home to share tonight.

ACTIVITIES / LINKS THAT MIGHT BE HELPFUL

Judy, Pine Class' Teacher wants to share a free reading programme with you.

"Teach your Monster to Read" has been tried and tested by Judy and she has had a great deal of success using it with children in various settings.

It teaches reading from the very early stages and your child's teacher can set it up for you and monitor how your child is doing at home.

One of our pupils in Pine Class is currently working very hard on this and is making good progress. If you are interested in doing this with your child, please contact Sue R in the office and we will set it up for you.

Olha has sent in another activity for those children who like eating fruit. A scrumptious necklace like the one below will not only fill their tummies up, but provide an exercise for little fingers that we are sure Caroline, Clare and Emma will approve of!

WHAT'S EVERYONE BEEN UP TO?

Following our story yesterday about the wonderful ways in which Afraz is helping at home, he was rather disappointed that there was no photograph of him doing these jobs. Dad has now sent some photos in to share with everyone and we hope that Afraz will be pleased!

Alfie has made some wonderful finger puppets at home. He now has a puppet for every finger! Kim is looking forward to lots of puppet shows over the weekend. Well done Alfie - they look fab!

However you spend your weekend, we hope you have a nice time and remember ... next week we are focusing on acts of kindness - so do share with us.
