SANDY'S DAILY MESSAGE

By the time you have read this update, you should have received an email detailing the amount of school days we can offer your child on a regular basis as from next week (unless advised otherwise).

I can also let you know that as well as timetabling pupils' return, we have scheduled a date to meet with parents via Zoom to answer any questions you may have about how we are operating during this current climate.

We have scheduled this meeting for this Friday, 12th June at 4.30pm.

If you wish to be a part of this meeting, please let Sue R in the office know your preferred email address for the invitation link to the meeting to be sent.

I look forward to speaking with you on Friday.

Sandy

ACTIVITIES / LINKS THAT MIGHT BE HELPFUL

Attached to this update today, you will find the next worksheet for your "lockdown project". Tuesday's focus is on 'My Community' - who you spent lockdown with and how you stayed connected with other people.

WHAT'S EVERYONE BEEN UP TO?

It was lovely to hear that Izaan has been working hard extending his expressive language at home.

Mum has been encouraging this through play and Helen, his SALT would like to send a big 'Well Done' to both Saima and Izaan.

Alfie has really taken the OT tasks and activities to heart, thoroughly enjoying every single one of them every week.

Here he is hugging himself tightly. We imagine that felt wonderful Alfie - a lot of people are missing hugs at the moment, so giving ourselves one might make us all feel better.

At school today, once 'work' had finished, Alfie F and Lucinda, his SALT began digging out a new border in the side garden. They have big plans for how it will look and want to grow runner beans, nasturtiums and perhaps some salad leaves.

Instead of a picket fence, they have decided they would like to surround the border with painted stones.

We wondered whether anyone would like to paint a stone to place in this special border? The more we get, the better it will look. The brighter the better!!

AND FINALLY

Last week Sandy posed some questions about the Queen Elizabeth's Coronation and asked whether anyone could find out the answers.

Well we are pleased to advise that Alex F in Hazel Class got all the answers, which were:

- 1) Prince Charles attended the Coronation. Princess Anne was too young and couldn't go.
- 2) The coronation lasted almost 3 hours.
- 3) Queen Elizabeth II's was crowned 67 years ago.

Your research skills have made you the winner of this exercise Alex and Sandy will be presenting you with a certificate. Well done.
